

Vacant Position Electrician / Faultperson (Culverden)

A vacancy has arisen for an electrician / faultman based at the Culverden depot.

This position involves network connections and switching operations, faults duty, retailer field services, low voltage service main work, and other associated duties. Of high importance is your ability to work safely and effectively on your own or in a team environment.

As the successful applicant, you will be:

1. Able to work safely in all conditions, with a sound knowledge of electricity industry safety requirements
2. Experienced at the distribution level within the electricity supply industry
3. A New Zealand registered electrician or electrical inspector with a current practicing license
4. Focused on the delivery of a high standard of customer service
5. Highly motivated with good problem solving skills and initiative, and
6. A good communicator

Preference will be given to a registered electrical inspector with a current practicing license, although electricians intending to train to become an electrical inspector should also apply.

The successful applicant will be required to be on rostered standby to attend fault calls during overtime on a one week in two roster. The vacant position is required to be filled at the end of 2010, however training in the Rangiora and Culverden area will be undertaken prior full-time relocation to Culverden.

A company owned three-bedroom house is available to rent in Culverden, and a four-wheel drive vehicle will be provided for the successful applicant to carry out their work duties.
